

toob privacy policy

This is the privacy policy of toob Ltd ("toob", or "we" or "our", or "us") whose company registration number is 11051348, and registered office is Building 4000 Lakeside North Harbour Western Road, PORTSMOUTH, England, PO6 3EN.

We respect your privacy and are committed to protecting your personal data. This means we will:

- use your data in a lawful, fair, and transparent way;
- collect your data for valid purposes that we have clearly explained to you and not in any way that is incompatible with those purposes;
- collect your data in a way that is relevant to the purposes we have told you about and limited only to those purposes;
- make sure your data is accurate and kept up to date;
- only keep your data for as long as necessary for the purpose we have told you about;
- keep your personal data safe and secure.

Our full privacy policy is found below, and we encourage you to read through it.

- interact with us :
 - a. to place an order for our service or products;
 - b. to register your interest in our service or products;
 - c. to contact us to make a general enquiry, for customer service about installations, maintenance & repair, marketing related matters;
 - d. for business-related matters; or
 - e. regarding any other matter.

(whether in person, via telephone, email, letter, meetings, SMS, our customer portal, or other communications, referred to in this privacy notice as "channels");

- attend our on-site premises ("attendance");
- participate in any competitions we offer ("competitions"); or
- interact with us in any other way, or when we have:

- obtained your personal data from public domain sources as detailed in How we collect personal data; or
- obtained your personal data from a third-party provider that we have a contract with or subscribe to.

In this privacy policy, we also refer to each of these ways of interacting with us as "communication channels". The interactions between you and us via the communication channels are referred to as "communications".

We may show you other privacy notices, including those of third-party organisations, when we collect or share your personal data which apply in addition to this privacy policy.

We may collect the following information about you:

Financial Data. If you are a business contact, we receive transactional and financial information relating to you for the purposes of invoicing. We do not store subscriber financial information in our systems;

Identity Data. This includes first name, last name, title;

Contact Data. This includes email address, address and telephone numbers;

Profile Data. This includes your username and password (if you are a subscriber), and other information you give us in connection with orders you make, your preferences, feedback, and survey responses;

Marketing and Communications Data. This includes information about your subscriptions to our communications and your marketing preferences;

Special Category Data. We may collect data regarding your health, vulnerabilities, or other special category data where you or your representative have provided this to us;

Internet Traffic Data. We collect internet traffic data to monitor the provision of service that we provide, which helps us identify and resolve problems. This includes information about you transmitted between us and your router. We are permitted to do this as we are a public communications provider as defined by the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations (PECR). For more information, you may wish to visit the Information Commissioner's Office website (www.ico.org.uk);

Technical and Usage Data. We automatically receive and record information from your device or web browser when you interact with our internet service, website or toob Customer Portal, for example your MAC code, mobile device ID, time zone setting, location data, language preference, operating system, platform, and links you have clicked on or shared with others, including through email and social media. We may use this information to collect data about your activities on our website and portal and on third-party websites. We may associate this information with your subscriber account (if you have one) and other information we have collected about you;

Location Data. We may collect geo-data, which tells us where you are, when we collect other information about you. We may link location data to other information we have collected about you;

Eligibility Information. If you order toob essentials, we may receive confirmation from the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) that you receive certain government benefits;

Switching Information. We may collect or receive information such as the name of your new or outgoing provider, your account number for that provider and the end date for your minimum contract period if you choose to use the process known as 'One Touch Switch' when switching to or from toob, when you express your interest in toob or to confirm your eligibility for certain promotions we may offer from time to time;

CCTV Footage. If you attend one of our sites we will capture footage of you via CCTV systems.

3. Aggregated data

- We aggregate personal data we collect, such as the number and frequency of your visits to our website or toob Customer Portal, to produce metrics and statistical information. We may share this data with third parties in an anonymised format.
- We share aggregated, anonymized, information with our advertising partners and service providers so that we, and they, can understand how people use our website, and interact with our social media and advertising campaigns; this helps us grow our business and improve and develop our products and services. These third parties may share information about you with us that they have independently developed or acquired in an anonymous format.
- We combine anonymized information about you with anonymous information about other users to create audience segments of aggregated data, for example, statistical, demographic and usage data. If, for any reason, we combine or connect aggregated data with personally identifiable information (that is, information that may identify you whether directly or indirectly), we treat the combined data as personal data and manage it in accordance with this privacy policy.

4. How we collect personal data

- We collect personal data when you give it to us directly, for example when you register your interest in our service, when you subscribe to our service, when you opt-in to our marketing communications, when you contact us by email, when you enter a competition, or contact us for any reason.
- We automatically collect personal data when you interact with our website or toob Customer Portal, for example, information about your devices and browsing actions via cookies and similar technologies. For more information on this, please see our cookie policy.
- Third parties that we work with, such as analytics providers or ad networks, may give us your personal data, for the purpose of supplying our business with data.

- If you are a toob essentials customer, or you tell us you would like to become a toob essentials customer, we will ask the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) to confirm your eligibility for toob essentials. We may also collect your personal data from public domain sources (such as HM Land Registry and Companies House) and use this to contact you if we need to get in touch about building our network on land or property where wayleaves may be required from you.
- We may receive your personal data from third parties when you make payments to us. This includes your contact details and financial and transaction data from providers of payment and invoicing services. We do not store financial information such as bank account or credit card numbers from you.
- If you interact with us via social media websites or apps, the privacy notices of the specific social media platform will also apply.
- Contact with us (including by telephone) will be monitored and recorded; either as part of an ongoing subscriber account or for other reasons (such as when you make a complaint or register an interest). This is so we can review and record any instructions you have given us. It also helps us monitor usage of our communication channels.
- We automatically collect certain information when you use our broadband services. For example, we collect Technical and Usage Data via technology integrated with our routers for the purposes of managing performance of our network and supporting you in the event of wi-fi or broadband issues.

5. Our lawful basis for processing your data

We only collect and use your personal data for the purposes shown below, unless we reasonably and lawfully consider that we need to use it for another reason that is compatible with the original purpose it was collected for. If we need to use your personal data for another purpose, we will explain the legal basis we rely on to you via this privacy policy.

We do not always need your consent to process your personal data; the table below shows how we use your personal data and the lawful basis for processing it in each case. In some cases, more than one lawful basis may apply.

This policy does not intend to limit any legal objections or defences you may have regarding the processing of your data, including requests to disclose your data to third parties.

6. Marketing

We will send marketing messages to you by email or SMS if you have opted-in by giving us your consent to do so. You can unsubscribe from these communications at any time either by using the link provided in email messages, via your toob Customer Portal account (if you are a toob broadband subscriber) or by contacting our friendly customer service team via any of the methods detailed in the section Contact details. We may also send marketing material by post.

We may use your personal data to deliver digital adverts to you or to help inform or improve our marketing campaigns. This may involve sharing some personal data with third parties, like social media and other digital platforms, where we use their advertising and marketing services.

From time to time, we may purchase marketing lists from third parties and use these to make marketing phone calls. We ensure we screen against the Telephone Preference Service and our own records where we do this.

Sometimes we work with third-party companies who provide products and services that may be of interest to you. When this applies, we will ask for your consent before sending your contact details on to the third party.

7. Service-related communications

You may not opt out of Service-related communications (e.g., account verification emails or SMS, purchase confirmations, billing reminders, changes/updates to features of our service, technical and security notices). This information is essential, and we have either a legitimate interest to send it to you or it is a contractual obligation according to the legal bases set out above.

8. Sharing personal data

- We collect your data to use within the toob legal entity.
- We share your data with third parties who process data on our behalf. These are companies that we have contracts with or subscribe to, to deliver specific services, for example, email communications, SMS communications, online advertisements, internet installation, financial services, review websites, professional services advisors.
- We may need to share your personal information with landowners or freeholders to proceed with your order by obtaining their permission to build our network on their land or in their property. If you are the landowner or freeholder, we may share your contact details with approved third parties to contact you about obtaining wayleave consent on our behalf.
- We share your data with third parties to use it for their own purposes when you have given us your consent to do so, for example cookies and similar technologies.
- You share your personal data with third parties when you publish content publicly on social media, for example, comments, reviews, replies, blogs, articles, and advertisements.
- If you wish to purchase toob essentials, we will share limited personal data (including your name, date of birth and address), with your permission, with the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) to confirm your eligibility.
- If you choose to use the process known as 'One Touch Switch' when switching to or from toob, we will share limited personal data with third parties for the purposes of managing your switch.
- If at any time a change happens to our business, for example, we sell, transfer, or merge parts of our business we will share your personal data with the new owner who may use it in the same way as set out in this privacy policy.

- We may disclose your personal data if we are required to do so by law, for example, to assist with a criminal investigation, as a matter of national security, or to comply with a court order.
- When using your information, we do so primarily to fulfil our contractual and legal obligations. We may also share your information with certain third parties including our suppliers, partners, and sub-contractors for the performance of any contract we enter into with you and for the purposes set out in the table above. This includes third party recipients such as those who provide installation, payment, billing, or communications services (among others) on our behalf. We require all third parties to treat your data in accordance with our privacy policy. We do not allow our third-party service providers to use your personal data for their own purposes and only permit them to process your personal data for specified purposes and in accordance with our instructions.

9. International data transfers

- When we process your personal data for the purposes outlined above, this may require transferring it outside of the UK to service providers that carry out certain functions on our behalf. This may involve transferring personal data to countries which have laws that do not provide the same level of data protection as the UK. When this is the case, we ensure a similar degree of protection is afforded to your personal data by ensuring the following safeguards are in place:
 - we will only transfer your personal data to countries that have been deemed by the UK to provide an adequate level of protection for personal data; or
 - we will use specific standard contractual terms approved for use in the UK which give the transferred personal data the same protection as it has in the UK, namely the International Data Transfer Agreement (or equivalents). To obtain a copy of these standard contractual safeguards, please contact us using our details below.
- When we select third parties to work with and process personal data on our behalf, we make it clear that we expect standards to be in place that ensure the protection and safeguarding of your personal data and legal rights.

10. Looking after your data

- We have procedures in place to safeguard your personal information, which includes having appropriate security measures to prevent your data from being lost, used, altered, disclosed, or accessed in an unauthorised way whether accidentally or on purpose.
- We restrict the access and use of your personal data to our staff, agents, contractors, and third parties who need to access it to support you as part of their job roles. They are all subject to a duty of confidentiality and may only process your data as we have instructed them to do so and in accordance with our privacy policy.
- We make no guarantees that our security measures will prevent personal data breaches. We have procedures in place to identify and manage suspected data breaches: if we confirm a personal data breach has taken place that is likely to endanger your rights and freedoms, we will notify you, the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), and, if necessary, any relevant competent authorities (e.g. Police, Government).

- If you are concerned that a personal data breach may have taken place you should contact us as soon as possible so that we can investigate this. Please contact us using the form here or call us on 023 9300 9300. Visit toob.co.uk for our opening hours.

11. Your responsibilities regarding end users

If you, as a toob broadband subscriber, allow end users ("them", "their") (for example, your family and friends, visitors, staff, customers etc) to use the services and products covered by this privacy policy, you are responsible for:

- adequately informing them that we control their data because of their use of the services and products;
- obtaining any consents from them as may be legally required before their data is communicated to us about the services or products you allow them to use;
- adequately informing them about this privacy policy and how it applies to them including their rights on data protection & privacy and how they can exercise them;
- ensuring you do not to use the services or products to collect or gain access to their data in an unlawful way or in a way that conflicts with this privacy policy;
- not doing, causing, or permitting anything that could in any manner or under any circumstances, result in any violation of applicable data protection law; and
- to comply with the relevant toob Terms & Conditions (visit www.toob.co.uk/legal and see either home broadband terms & conditions or business broadband terms & conditions).

12. Retaining your personal data

We keep your personal data for as long as reasonably necessary to fulfil the purposes for which it was collected, including for the purposes of satisfying any legal, regulatory, tax, accounting or reporting requirements. We may retain your personal data for a longer period in the event of a complaint or if we reasonably believe there is a prospect of litigation in respect to our relationship with you.

To determine the appropriate retention period for personal data, we consider the amount, nature and sensitivity of the personal data, the potential risk of harm from unauthorised use or disclosure of your personal data, the purposes for which we process your personal data and whether we can achieve those purposes through other means, and the applicable legal, regulatory, tax, accounting, or other requirements.

13. Third party sites, apps, and platforms

Our website includes links to third party websites and social media platforms. When you click on those links it may allow third parties to collect or share data about you.

You agree that we are not responsible for, and we do not control those third-party websites or social media platforms. We encourage you to read the privacy policies and notices of those websites or platforms so you understand how they will process information about you.

14. Cookie policy

This website uses cookies and similar technologies to distinguish you from other users. This helps us to provide you with the best experience possible when you browse our website and allows us to decide which improvements to make to it. For detailed information on the cookies we use and the purposes for which we use them see our cookie policy.

15. Your rights

Data Protection law makes sure your data is used properly and legally, and you can exercise certain rights, which are summarised below. For more information, please visit the ICO website(www.ico.org.uk/your-data-matters).

- Right to be informed if your personal data is being used
We must tell you how we use your personal data, and you will find this information in section Our legal bases for processing your data. If you have any specific questions about this, you may contact us for further information.
- Right to get copies of your data
You have the right to find out if we are using or storing your information and to request copies of it.
- Right to get your data corrected
You can challenge the accuracy of the personal data we hold about you and we encourage you to let us know if the personal data you have given us have changed.
- Right to get your data deleted
You can ask us to delete personal data about you. In some circumstances it may not be possible for us to delete your data, for example, if there is a contractual or legal obligation for us to retain it for a specific time.
- Right to limit how we use your data
You can ask us to limit the way in which we use your personal data. In some circumstances it may not be possible for us to limit the use of your data, for example, if there is a contractual or legal obligation for us to process it for a specific purpose.
- Right to data portability
When we provide you with copies of your data, you have the right to request it from us in an accessible format that can be used again or elsewhere.
- Right to object to the use of your data
You have the right to object to the processing or use of your personal data under certain conditions. In some circumstances it may not be possible for us to alter the use of your data following your objection, for example, if there is a contractual or legal obligation for us to process it.
- Rights relating to decisions being made about you without human involvement
Automated decision-making takes place when an electronic system uses personal information to decide something without human intervention. We do not expect to make any decisions about you as an individual that involve automated decision-making and would place a significant impact on you; however, should that position change at any time we will notify you via this privacy policy.

- Right to raise a concern

We encourage you to raise any concerns you might have about how we use your data. Please see section Contact details below for more information.

15.1. How to exercise your rights

Please contact us to exercise your rights in relation to personal data. You can help us by providing information about yourself such as your name and address and by telling us if your request relates to data held on a specific date or series of dates.

When you contact us, it may be necessary for us to ask you to verify your identity as a security measure and this may involve requesting a copy of your personal identification (ID), such as a passport or driving licence. Any such requests from us will be proportionate to the type of information requested.

If you allow a third party to contact us on your behalf, we will ask you to provide your written consent naming that third party, or for the third party to suitably demonstrate that they are acting on your behalf, whichever is most relevant to your circumstances.

We may need to contact you (or the third party) and ask for further information to help you exercise your legal rights, or to help us speed up our response time to you.

We are legally obliged to reply to a request within one month. If we are unable to complete a request within that time, we will contact the person who raised the request to let them know. This might occur if the request is complicated and/or requires a significant amount of work to complete.

In certain circumstances exemptions may apply, or we may have an overriding legal basis for processing your personal data, which means we can decline a request. If that is the case, we will contact the person who raised the request to explain why.

16. Contact details

We encourage you to raise your concerns with us in the first instance, so that we can try to resolve them.

You can find the best ways to contact us by visiting our contact page.

Alternatively, you can write to us at Customer Services, 4000 Lakeside North Harbour, Portsmouth PO6 3EN. Please remember, it can sometimes take a bit longer to reach us by post and for our reply to get back to you.

You have the right to make a complaint or raise a concern at any time about data protection and privacy matters to the Information Commissioner's Office (<https://ico.org.uk/global/contact-us/>).

17. Changes to this policy

Our privacy policy was last updated in June 2025, and this published version supersedes any previous versions.

We review our privacy policy on a regular basis. The latest version will always be published here, and historic versions can be provided on request.

It is important that the data we hold on you is current so, please keep us up to date with this during our relationship with you.

If you have any questions about our privacy policy or would like to request a copy of a previous version, you can find the best ways to contact us by visiting our contact page.
